

Behavioral Health Center of Excellence
UC Davis

Student Resiliency

Jordana Steinberg shares her story

Mental and behavioral health is a growing concern across the country. Jordana Steinberg, a Sierra College student who recently began sharing her story about overcoming mental illness, will speak to the UC Davis community on January 12. Jordana inspires other students by telling about her struggles and emphasizing that recovery is possible. Jordana's father, former Senator Darrell Steinberg, has long been a champion of mental health for all Californians and is currently director of policy and advocacy at the UC Davis Behavioral Health Center of Excellence.

The Behavioral Health Center of Excellence launched Oct. 1, 2014 with initial funding from the Mental Health Services Act. The Center bridges research and policy.

This lecture is open to the public, university faculty, students and staff as part of a series to share the latest research and policy with UC Davis and our community.

Parking: Permits may be purchased from dispensers in the Mondavi parking lots off of Old Davis Road.

facebook.com/BehavioralhealthUCD/
<http://behavioralhealth.ucdavis.edu/>
916-734-4349 @UCDbrainhealth

TUESDAY

January 12

4:00 p.m. – 5:30 p.m.

Mental Health Student Organizations

Tabling at 4:00 p.m. | Program at 4:30 p.m.

UC Davis Conference Center Ballroom B/C

Register online by January 8, 2016

<https://bhcoe-jan2016.eventbrite.com>

UC DAVIS