

Firearm Violence and Mental Illness

Garen Wintemute, M.D., M.P.H.

Amy Barnhorst, M.D.

Each year in the United States, firearm violence results in approximately 30,000 deaths and approximately 75,000 nonfatal injuries to patients seen in hospital emergency departments.

Garen Wintemute, Susan P. Baker-Stephen P. Teret Chair in Violence Prevention at UC Davis and internationally known director of the Violence Prevention Research Program, will discuss new research on the epidemiology of firearm violence, including mass shootings. Amy Barnhorst, assistant professor of psychiatry and behavioral sciences, will explore the relationship between mental illness and firearm violence, and discuss firearm legislation that is aimed at people with mental illnesses.

In this seminar you will learn more regarding the broad policy implications that result from evidence-based research on the relationships between gun violence and mental illness.

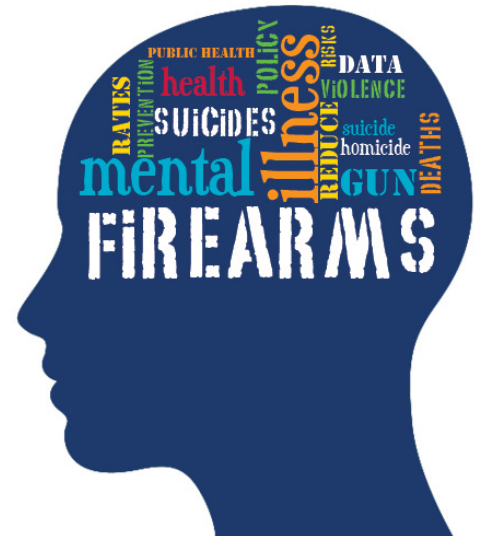

The Behavioral Health Center of Excellence at UC Davis was launched Oct. 1, 2014, with initial funding from the California Mental Health Services Act. The center bridges research, mental-health care and public policy to improve the lives of those touched by psychiatric illness.

RSVP required by April 28, 2016

<http://bhcoe-may2016.eventbrite.com>

Amanda Berry, 916-734-4349, arwberry@ucdavis.edu

This lecture is free and open to the public, university faculty, students and staff as part of a series to share the latest research and policy with UC Davis and our community. Further details are available at www.behavioralhealth.ucdavis.edu

DATE:

Tuesday, May 3, 2016

TIME:

3 - 4:30 p.m.

LOCATION:

UC Davis Health System
Education Building
Lecture Hall 1222
4610 X St.,
Sacramento, CA 95817

PARKING:

$2/hour in
Parking Structure #3 on Stockton Blvd. and X St.

REFRESHMENTS WILL BE PROVIDED

UC DAVIS
HEALTH SYSTEM